

Elliott H. Leitman, M.D.

Orthopaedic Sports Medicine, Certified
Arthroscopic Specialist
Joint Replacement

Welcome to First State Orthopaedics

Upon completing my orthopaedic sports medicine fellowship in 1998, I began practice in the Wilmington area. Since that time I have been utilizing the latest arthroscopic surgical techniques in shoulder, knee, and hip reconstruction. Outside of clinical practice, I have published several journal articles and contributed to orthopaedic textbooks. From 1992 through 2007, I served in the Medical Corp of the United States Army Reserve, including active duty in 2003. Several area high school and college teams have invited me to serve as their team physician. In 2010, I received additional subspecialty certification in Orthopaedic Sports Medicine. Robotic assisted joint replacement is a recent area of interest that may be right for you.

My practice focuses on personalized care for patients of all ages and activity levels. Drawing on my experience as a professional team physician as well as a military surgeon, I can develop a care plan that is individualized to meet your needs. While most patients are treated non-operatively, the utilization of minimally invasive surgical techniques allows for more rapid recovery with less pain.

Thank you for allowing me to participate in your care.
